Grand Jury Expense

Among the several amendments to the constitution to be voted upon at the general election is one calling for the prosecution upon direct information, which, in a way, eliminates the work of the grand jury to a certain degree. Under the terms of the constitutional amendment provisions are made for district attorneys to proceed with the prosecution of certain criminal cases as soon as the information to the issue is placed in their hands. This prevents long delays in trials and serves to reduce the expenses that naturally accrue from such cases.

The amendment is one that should receive the favorable consideration of every voter in the state. It is apparently one of the best methods yet advanced for the reduction of expense in conducting criminal trials, and, on the other hand, serves to render justice speedily. Under the present law a defendant in a criminal action is forced to remain in jail for months at a time if he is not in a position to provide bonds. Cases have occurred where men were falsely imprisoned for months waiting for a grand jury to hear their cases, while with the proposed law in operation no such long waits would be occasioned.

The detention of a prisoner in the county jail for a month or more means that the county bears the expense. Expense is also attached to every day's session of the grand jury which must first determine the apparent guilt or innocence of the defendant before he can go on trial in the district court. The method appears farcical, yet it is followed in the majority of states. The problem that confronts the law makers is to devise a system that will eliminate the grand jury in its entirety and the constitutional amendment appears to be a solution along the right lines. While it does not call for the complete elimination of the inquisitorial body, nevertheless it serves to lessen the labors of that organization and at the same time keeps down the expense of conducting the county government.

Newspaper Delicacy

The delicacy of newspapers is evidently on the wane, judging from the radical changes to be observed in the press of the present day when compared to the publication of a half decade ago. A striking example of modern day journalism is to be noted in a recent issue of one of the Reno papers wherein it is declared that a nine-pound baby is desirous of finding a home.

The story goes on and states that the baby was born at the Crittenton home and is nameless, the identity of the mother being concealed. Yet with the futile attempt at concealment of the name of the unfortunate mother it is a safe bet that there is not a woman in Reno who does not know the entire history of the affair. It is of such topics that gossips are at their best and with such a choice morsel, the news mongers can be depended upon to have worked overtime in spreading the information from household to household.

While the newspaper may show faint signs of delicacy in withholding the name of the mother of the nameless baby, there is no such hesitation on the part of the members of the gossips' union. Reno has no monopoly upon gossips, for many members in good standing are to be found in Tonopah, and before the expiration of the week they can be relied upon to have complete details of the affair.

The evils that men do nowadays in the political world do not live after them unless they are candidates for re-election. Then they are blamed for every misdeed committed in their entire neighborhood. Happy is the man who is not seeking an office.

The regularity in which bullion shipments are dispatched from Tonopah may make it necessary for the installation of a bullion train before many months pass.

UNSPIKED RAIL THROWS UP SPONGE ELECTION CONTEST

WILL DEVOTE TIME TO AGAIN
MAKING RUN FOR OFFICE ON BULL MOOSE TICKET

CARSON CITY, Nev., Sept. 20.—George Springmeyer, contestant for the office of attorney general, has abandoned further prosecution of the case. There will be no more ballots, no more prolonged sessions of the supreme court commissioner appointed for the purpose, no more bickerings between the present attorney general and the contesting but defeated candidate. This morning Springmeyer threw up his hands and allowed the matter to be submitted without a completion of the count. It has been a long drawn out contest. Springmeyer was defeated by Cleve Baker by 69 votes. Springmeyer alleged fraud, but failed to state any specific instance and the recount of ballots commenced. Just a few weeks ago Baker insisted that the recount which has dragged over many months be either prosecuted or dismissed. Then a decision that county clerks must accompany ballots was made and this monumental expense was more than Springmeyer could stand. Today he threw up the sponge and discontinued the contest. He placed the matter up to the supreme court, and the contest is now a thing of the past.

Believes This Will "Cure Lung Troubles"

Consumption is a flattering disease—that is one of its chief dangers. Those who have it are rarely willing to acknowledge the fact. If this trouble is present, it is no time for trifling. It is a so-called "cold" has long persisted; if a cough is present that keeps you anxious, or any of the symptoms are present, such as fever or night sweats, weakness and loss of appetite, and perhaps some raising of mucus—do the sensible thing—take Eckman's Alternative—as Mr. Betterworth did.

Rowling Green, Ky., R. No. 4.
"Gentlemen: I wish to say for your Alternative that I believe it to be a medicine of unequalled value for all Bronchial and Lung trouble. The spring of 1908, I had a severe cough for six months. I tried all the medicine that my doctors recommended to me, but no results came for the better. I had night sweats, and would cough and spit until I got so weak I could hardly do anything. But, at last, James Deering, of Glasgow Junction, insisted that I try your medicine. In one week's time there was quite an improvement in my condition, and after I had taken several bottles, I felt as well as a new man in my life.

"I desire the world to know that I firmly believe that your Eckman's Alternative will cure any case of lung trouble if taken before the last stage. I will gladly write personally to any party wanting information in regard to your wonderful medicine."

(Sworn affidavit.)
A. C. BETTERWORTH.
